Stone was nominated for one of the year's most controversial movies, "JFK," which revives conspiracy theories on the assassination of President John Kennedy.

S.F. CHRONICLE

1/29/92

Stone in Paris

Stone heard the news of his nomination while traveling in Europe, where "JFK" opened last week in Germany and last night in France. He was reached by telephone in Paris just after he had received the French government's medal as Commander of Arts and Letters for his directing and writing career.

Reacting to the guild nomination, Stone said, "Not only am I honored, especially with this nomination from my peers, but I feel, to a certain degree, vindicated."